They Went to Sacramento; Now What?

On February 27th more than 200 people boarded the buses that took representatives from schools in Lamorinda, Livermore, Alamo, Danville and San Ramon to Sacramento to meet our elected officials. 15 to 20 high school students from Las Lomas and Acalanes joined the group. "It was very interactive, we got to ask direct questions and got direct answers from our legislators," says Diane Oshima, Legislative Team, Las Trampas Creek Council of PTAs. The budget cuts looming in the short future overpowered the other issue, long-term education reform in California. "Even though there is no money at this time, we need to define what are the most important changes the system must undergo to meet the challenges of the future," adds Oshima. But the battle does not stop there. "Our district delivered close to 5,000 letters, and met with our legislators," says Jim Negri AUHSD Superintendent, "but we have no commitment to date that the 10% across the board cut proposed by Governor Schwarzenegger will be amended. As of today, the 'no new taxes' Republican motto stands."

Most legislators that the team met are favorable to some type of budgetary reform. The Democratic majority, like State Representative Loni Hancock, are ready to increase the State's income as well as reducing its expenses. But in California (like in only three other States of the Union), a majority of 2/3 is required to pass a budget. This year, we can bet that the deadline of July 1st will have to be extended. And that is why schools want parents to stay motivated through the summer. "It is time that parents, educators and concerned citizens take a stand against the dismantling of California's public school system," says Camino Pablo Elementary PTA Parliamentarian Ana Ramirez.

With the long debate ahead, Negri encourages everyone to send a new set of letters to Sacramento. The new set of letters can be found at <http://www.lastrampaspta.org/letters.html>. One of the statements of the letter is: "I urge you to leave Proposition 98 minimum funding limits for education intact, and to find ways to stabilize the state's budget at adequate levels."

The only delegate in our area who is not favorable to making a different budget decision is Guy Huston. He will be running for a position as a County Supervisor in November. "Maybe it's time that concerned parents let him know that his position on schools will influence voters," says Negri. Probably, the parents with most clout right now would be Republicans who might directly address the Governor, asking him not to cut 10% across the board, but to set priorities.

This position is the one advocated by one of the most respected voice in Sacramento, Elisabeth Hill, Head of the California Legislative Analyst's Office, the independent body that has been providing non-partisan fiscal advice to both chambers and both parties since 1941. Usually Ms. Hill's Office does not propose an alternative budget. This year, it did.

"This year we suffer from lower revenues, which creates a larger budget problem. For years we have suffered a structural deficit, and failure to set priorities,"

"I'm never too busy for your referrals!"

said Hill. She believes that the 10% across the board cut proposed by our Governor only offers an illusion of fairness, that priorities have to be defined. Her proposal has two sides, a targeted spending reduction program and a revenue component. On the spending reduction side she proposes to maintain the service level and set priorities, to eliminate non-working programs or find alternative funding for other programs (increase California university fees, for example). On the revenue side, she believes that a broad based tax increase is not good for business or individuals; instead she proposes to remove some tax exemptions. A video presentation of her vision can be seen at <http://www.lao.ca.gov/laoapp/main.aspx>.

As Ramirez reminded parents, "The state of California is the seventh largest economy in the world and spends 40% of its annual budget on education. The State ranks 46th in per pupil funding in the United States. All the legislators agree that we need to find and maintain more stable funding for our schools."

Oshima also believes it is possible, "From our perspective we are going to make a difference by supporting State support of schools. Interested citizens need to stay active over the summer and Las Trampas Creek Council of PTAs will keep informing people. The budget won't be approved on July 1st, pressure on elected officials needs to continue." Otherwise, layoffs, class size increase, reduction in library time, suppression of mini-grants and weakening of special education is in store for next year and the years to come.

The Las Trampas Creek Council of PTAs is encouraging parents and concerned members of the community to engage in a second round of letter writing. Now that the mid-year budget cuts have been made, we need to once again ask our legislators to support public education funding. The PTA's letter can be downloaded at <http://www.lastrampaspta.org/letters.html> and must be signed with name and address printed at the bottom of each letter. Letters can be dropped at the office of any public school in Lamorinda.

Miramonte HS Junior Prom: Arabian Nights

By Natalie Romak

Prom. It's a dinner, it's a dance; and to many, it is a rite of passage. A formal and extravagant event, Prom has always symbolized high school spirit and is traditionally the most memorable event of those four years. This spring, Miramonte High School's Junior Prom for the class of 2009 will serve as a fun filled and luxurious take on the classic "big night out".

Planning for the Miramonte Junior Prom began right off the bat with the selection of a location in September 2007. The Miramonte Junior Prom has traditionally been an on-campus event, but due to the increased use of the school gym for other purposes as well as fire regulations and the extent of the parent volunteer commitment, changes have been put into play. Just last year, the on-campus chain was broken and the Prom was held on an off-campus site for the first time. The success of the location was such that this year's Prom will also be held off-campus. The student officers of the Junior Prom committee agreed that it was of utmost importance to find a space that would hold all four-hundred and twenty expected guests in one room, both for a formal sit-down dinner and, of course, for dancing. After researching several sights, the student committee settled on the Golden Gate Ballroom of the Hilton Hotel in Concord, due to its convenient East Bay location (a School District requirement).

ior Prom student committee met once again to continue discussion of the Prom. The theme was decided, after consideration of a variety of choices, to be Arabian Nights, a theme that allows for great entertainment, decorations and music, as well as a fabulous menu.

The Miramonte Junior Prom for the class of 2009 will take place on May 3, 2008. Students will arrive on campus, and be transported to the Hilton in ten luxury coach buses—and then the night begins. The formal three-course sit-down dinner will consist of a Middle Eastern inspired menu, beginning with a Mediterranean Salad and Chicken Kabobs, which will be followed by a Tuxedo Truffle Mousse Cake. A soda and juice bar will be available all night long for the convenience of the guests. Students will enjoy not only the typical DJ dance, but also entertainment from an Arabian Princess Character, Tarot and Palm readers, and even Belly Dancers.

Invitations will be sent to each Junior Class student on April 7th for the May 3rd event. Tickets may be purchased from the Miramonte Web Store for eighty dollars; an expense that includes transportation, dinner, dancing, and entertainment.

The Junior Class Student Prom Committee has, with the help of generous parent volunteers, ensured that the members of the Miramonte Junior Class experience what will surely be a night to remember.

KUMON
MATH. READING. SUCCESS.

LET YOUR CHILD AMAZE YOU.

Kumon is a different kind of after-school learning program, where children master the basics of math and reading through daily practice.

Kumon students also build strong learning skills, disciplined study habits, and the confidence they need to succeed in school...and beyond.

Just imagine where that could take your child.
