Four years of basketball excellence for Jordan Ford at SMC

Bennett sees the NBA as a realistic goal for Ford: "I have been contacted by a number of teams about Jordan and he has a good reputation with the NBA scouts. I've had enough of them contact me and I can tell there's a buzz about him. The more they get to know him, the more they are going to like him. He is still only 21, which is young for a college senior. He's going to get stronger and he will keep getting better as a player. He reminds me a lot of Patty Mills (who was drafted in the second round in 2009 by Portland and has played 10 seasons, and is currently on the San Antonio Spurs' roster) as a scoring point guard. I think he has a good chance to make it."

Ford took his academics seriously from the start: "It was just a matter of prioritizing my time correctly and making sure I stayed on top of my schoolwork and staying organized. There were outlets for me to go to and get help if I needed it. The best part about college, I would like to say, was just meeting all the great people at Saint Mary's, from the students and the fans after the games and having all of the relationships I built with my teammates and the coaching staff, which will last forever."

It was during the final team meeting, when the team learned that the rest of the season was being canceled, where the real meaning of what the last four years of playing at Saint Mary's meant to Ford: "It was frustrating not to finish out the season because we had worked so hard to get where we were. To not be able finish out something that meant so much to us, it was a disappointing time because we believed we could have made some legitimate noise in the tournament. We were all in shock at what was going on. Despite that, everyone was showing love to each other, especially to the seniors."
